Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 5/29/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

A. Rejection of claims 1,2,4,11,15-20,22,27,29,30,32,33,39,40 under 35 USC 103(a) on record will be maintained for reasons on record and reasons as follows.

I. Applicant argues that both Saphakkul and JP '898 discloses aqueous compositions wherein water is the solvent. Examiner argues that Applicant's claims use the open language "comprising" which allows for the presences of water. The formality of the instant claims allows for the water to be present in the majority. For example, claim one as amended allows for the lipophilic solvent to be slightly about 5%. For example, instant composition comprises a lipophilic solvent which can be present at 5.00001 wt %, less than 1% lipophilic plant nutrient, less than 1% cationic emulsifier. In such a composition, water is present in more than 94%.

II. Applicant argues that the claims as amended are directed to an agricultural composition comprising greater than 5% lipophilic solvent. Applicant argues that Examiner construes the "fatty alcohol" as the claimed lipophilic solvent. However, Applicant argues that Saphakkul clearly teaches that the fatty alcohol is not the solvent, but is present to form a distinct phase within the aqueous hair dye composition. Examiner argues that Saphakkul teaches a hair dye composition that has 5% fatty alcohol; whereas, Applicant amended claims incorporate greater than 5% (5.00001 wt %) fatty alcohol. Examiner argues that Applicant provides no unexpected data for prior art having 5% fatty alcohol versus Applicant's composition having slightly greater than 5% (5.00001%) fatty alcohol. Examiner also reiterates that the instant claims are open to aqueous compositions / systems. See I above. It is also important to note that in a claim to a composition / method of composition preparation, a statement to intended use of the composition has no patentable significance. Therefore, the fact that Saphakkul may suggest that the fatty alcohol is used to create a distinct phase within the aqueous hair dye is insignificant. However, what is significant is that Saphakkul teaches a composition comprising 5% fatty alcohol which is lipophilic, and therefore, can be considered the lipophilic component of the instant claims.

III. Applicant argues that references cited by the Examiner are in an art which is non-analogous to instantly claimed invention. Applicant argues that Saphakkul and JP '898 relates to hair products and that a person of skill in the art would not have been motivated to combine the references to solve the problem of providing a stable homogenous blend as instantly claimed. Applicant also argues that there exist no motivation for combining Saphakkul and JP '898. Examiner argues that the obviousness in making a composition does not lie solely on whether the art is analogous or non-analogous, but rather on the determination that the prior art suggests the composition. In the present case both Saphakkul and JP '898 teach hair treatment compositions; where prior art references teach the same utility, it is obvious to combine them. In this case, the combination of cited references makes instant composition obvious.

IV. The rejection of claim 33 is maintained. Applicant argues that claim 33 relates to a method of treating vegetation with claimed composition. Examiner argues that claim 33 teaches basically a composition. Claim 33 does not recite the active step of applying the composition to vegetation.

B. Objection to claims 3,5-10,12,13,14,21,23-26,28 is maintained. The allowance of claims 34-38,41-45 is maintained. See paper no. 15.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
